

Lesson Plan

Initiative and Self-direction:

When to Take Initiative and When to Seek Guidance

Objective: Students will examine workplace situations and explore when it is appropriate to take initiative vs. when to seek guidance from a superior.

Workplace Readiness Skill: Demonstrate initiative and self-direction.

Demonstration includes

- recognizing the importance of proactive, independent decision making
- identifying workplace needs
- completing tasks with minimal direct supervision
- applying solutions.

Correlations to Other Workplace Readiness Skills:

- Demonstrate integrity.
- Demonstrate work ethic.
- Demonstrate conflict-resolution skills.
- Demonstrate customer service skills.
- Collaborate with team members.
- Demonstrate big-picture thinking.
- Demonstrate career- and life-management skills.
- Demonstrate professionalism.

Correlations to Virginia Standards of Learning (SOL):

- English: 6.1, 6.2, 6.3, 6.7, 6.8, 7.1, 7.2, 7.3, 7.7, 7.8, 8.2, 8.7, 8.8, 9.1, 9.6, 9.7, 10.1, 10.6, 10.7, 11.6, 11.7, 12.6, 12.7
- History and Social Science: CE.4, CE.14, GOVT.16

Instructional Steps:

1. Define and discuss initiative. Initiative is defined as energy or aptitude displayed in initiation of action. Synonyms include drive, hustle, enterprise, and ambition. Ask students why they think that employers might want workers who demonstrate initiative. Ask students for examples of how workers might demonstrate initiative.
2. Introduce scenarios. Explain to students that the class will be exploring workplace scenarios and then determining appropriate courses of action for the workers in those scenarios. Distribute Handout #1: When to Employ Initiative.
3. Read and discuss scenarios. Ask students to work in small groups to read through and discuss each scenario. In each, the guiding questions for the students to consider are

- a. What should the employee do?
- b. Is it always a good idea to make independent decisions in the workplace, or are there times when it is more appropriate to turn to a team member or manager?
- c. What will be the effect of the chosen action?
- d. How might the employer feel about the outcome?

4. Reflect on the lesson. Ask students to reflect in writing. Use the following prompt:

Employers value workers who demonstrate initiative and self-direction. In what ways are these characteristics desirable, based on the discussions you had about the five scenarios? In what ways is it sometimes not appropriate to demonstrate initiative? Explain your thoughts.

Formative Assessment:

- Gauge student understanding throughout the small-group discussions.
- Use the “Journal Assessment Rubric” to assess student understanding of the concept as demonstrated in writing.

Options for Adaptation/Differentiation:

- To offer scaffolding to students, complete a whole-group walk-through of just one or two scenarios from Handout #1: When to Employ Initiative.
- To offer an extension option to students, ask them to create their own scenarios related to demonstrating initiative in the workplace.

Suggestions for Follow-up:

- Ask students to interview an adult (parent, neighbor, employer, or friend) about situations when demonstrating initiative paid off in the workplace.
- Ask students to complete activities associated with the lesson on page 36, “Never Underestimate the Power of PMA,” in Soft Skills to Pay the Bills — Mastering Soft Skills for Workplace Success (<https://www.dol.gov/odep/topics/youth/softskills/>), from the U.S. Department of Labor, Office of Disability Employment Policy.

Handout #1

When to Employ Initiative

Use the following scenarios as a springboard for discussion about demonstrating initiative in the workplace. Consider the following questions:

- What should the employee do?
- Is it always a good idea to make independent decisions in the workplace, or are there times when it is more appropriate to turn to a team member or manager?
- What will be the effect of the chosen action?
- How might the employer feel about the outcome?

Scenario 1: Pari works at a deli. Her boss, Cheryl, has recently negotiated a new contract with a supplier. Cheryl spent months researching her options before signing on with the new supplier. A delivery is scheduled for Friday night, when Cheryl is scheduled to be off. The supplier phones on Friday afternoon because he will not be able to make the delivery. Cheryl has already left. What should Pari do?

Scenario 2: June's manager calls to let her know that he will be running late due to a family emergency. The business is supposed to open at 8:00 a.m., and the manager has booked morning client appointments at 8:30, 9:00, and 9:30. June is familiar with all these clients' projects, but is not scheduled to begin work until 10:00 a.m. What should June do?

Scenario 3: Tameka works at a retail store. An angry customer comes in with a damaged item to return. The item has no tags, the brand is not one that is familiar to Tameka, and there is no receipt. Tameka understands customer service and wants to make all the customers happy, but she is suspicious about this return. Her boss is not around. What should Tameka do?

Scenario 4: Bill works at an automotive repair shop where he is working on the engine of a 2015 Dodge Ram. A new part has been delivered but Bill sees that it is not an exact fit for that engine. Bill thinks he can use his knowledge as a mechanic to create a fix using the part. Should Bill use initiative to solve the problem, or should Bill alert his manager that the wrong part was delivered?

Scenario 5: Carlos has a new job in a law office. Carlos thinks he might want to attend law school someday. One of the firm's partners offers to walk through some aspects of a lawyer's career with Carlos, but Carlos will have to stay after work to do this and will certainly not get paid. What should Carlos do?
